

Vinyl Fence - A Great, Durable Alternative

Contributed by Kyle
Tuesday, 11 September 2007
Last Updated Tuesday, 11 September 2007

Vinyl fencing is one of the most durable fencing options available on the market right now. It lasts much longer than wood or iron fencing and comes in a variety of colors. It's easy to install, readily available, and is incredibly strong. If you're considering a new fence at your home, be sure to consider a vinyl fence.

{mosgoogle left} There are some great benefits to having fencing made of vinyl instead of traditional wood fencing. Unlike wood which fades over time and needs new stain or paint nearly every season, vinyl fencing will never change color or have the worn and faded look like an older wooden fence. Pests like termites cannot infest a vinyl fence like they easily could a wooden fence.

Vinyl fencing comes not only in different colors, but also in different styles. You can purchase a short picket fence to surround your front yard. Tall privacy fencing is also available, as is a ranch style fence that you may see around a horse paddock. Decorative caps can also be purchased, whether you like your posts to be topped with a ball, diamond, or simple flat cap.

Installing your own vinyl fence is very simple. To install most vinyl fencing, you simply slide the pieces into place and they click into pre-made holes. There is no sawing, heavy labor, or painful hammering necessary! You won't need to hire a contractor or a construction crew. Once your fence is in place, you're done. There's no staining, sealing, painting, or other work needed.

Vinyl fence materials can be purchased online or many local stores. Check larger department stores with an outdoor department, your local hardware store, and farm supply stores. You can usually get the materials delivered right to your own home. When selecting vinyl fencing to purchase, be sure to ask about warranty. Also check that the package you purchase includes all necessary supplies and instructions to install the fence.

Vinyl fencing, while sometimes slightly more expensive than wood fencing, is definitely worth the investment. Think of how much time and money you will save with a virtually maintenance free fence. Throw away the buckets of stain and sealant, forget about wood pests and rotting posts. Vinyl fencing is a great looking, durable alternative!